

Marketing and Communication Intern for France

Are you looking for a new job that is both challenging and exciting? Are you full of ambition and want to make a difference? Are you eager to change the world of online work with us? Then twago is the right place for you!

twago is the leading platform for online work in Europe. We are changing the world of teamwork by connecting freelancers and business clients from all over the world in order to successfully manage various projects.

We are currently looking for a Marketing and Communication Intern for France that will make a difference for us. If you have a hands-on attitude and enjoy working with a team of smart, fun people in the heart of Berlin, then this could be your next career opportunity.

Your position:

- Creative development of new concepts for successful communication and online presence
- Independent management of different social media channels: (Facebook, Twitter, Instagram). Explore different ways to expand our social media presence across various channels, interact with followers and constantly measure performance.
- Content marketing: Creation of blog posts under supervision of the Head of Communications
- Translate English texts for various web pages and email newsletters

What you bring with you:

- Student in Business, Marketing, Communications or similar
- Fluent in French plus one of the following languages (Spanish, Dutch or Italian)
- Strong command of spoken and written English (twago's office language)
- Enjoy working in a young and dynamic team
- Excellent writing and communication skills
- A creative thinker
- Dynamic, proactive and full of energy to help other people
- "Can-do" attitude and ability to think also with a business mind

What we offer:

- An ideal environment in which to grow with a successful start-up
- Increasing autonomy, authority, and accountability based on your contributions
- Opportunity to bring in and realize your own ideas
- Working alongside an experienced, successful and international team
- Very attractive office in the heart of Berlin (Kreuzberg)
- Fresh fruits, drinks and company lunch every week

If you believe you tick all the boxes, please send your application – resume, certificates, and a cover letter with your availability to Anna Hudz at join-our-team@twago.com.